

Colby Leider

Biography

Colby Leider is a composer, inventor, and educator who lives in Miami, Florida USA. His music has been performed and read by various groups, including Paul Hillier and the Theatre of Voices, the Nash Ensemble of London, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, contrabassist Bertram Turetzky, and accordionist William Schimmel. He was recently appointed Assistant Professor of Music at the University of Miami School of Music and teaches courses in digital signal processing, alternate controllers for music-making, audio electronics, and computer music. Colby also serves as Associate Editor of Computer Music Journal (published by MIT Press), and he is recorded on Innova, ICMA, and SEAMUS labels. He holds degrees from Princeton, Dartmouth, and the University of Texas.